TAGBALL SPORTS ANNOUNCES LIFESTYLES OF MARYLAND

AS A PARTNER

WALDORF, MD, SEPTEMBER 25, 2009: TagBall Sports, a division of Bell/MEAC, Inc. today announced they have teamed up with LifeStyles of Maryland, Inc. - a non-profit community outreach program whose primary focus is to provide services to the economically disadvantaged.

Bell/MEAC, Inc. is celebrating 22 years of changing the lives of youth. In 1987, Founder/CEO Phillip Bell, Jr. took the lead in organizing a group of mentors who had concerns about high risk youths, their families, their schools and their communities, and who envisioned an organization that would combine their passions. With the vision of enhancing awareness of inner self and abilities through recreation and fitness experience, Bell designed M.E.A.C., a program to improve self esteem, academics, fitness and social behavior of at-risk youth. Bell's education and training combined with his extensive experience enabled him to fully understand and meet the needs of troubled youth by offering a program that provides a balanced atmosphere where youth and their families can improve their communication and understanding of the true meaning of life. The Bell/M.E.A.C. program has served well over several thousands of clients for over 15 years from DC Superior Court - Social Services Branch and neighboring areas, such as Prince George's County, Maryland and Alexandria, Virginia.

With obesity among children being at crisis proportions and youth being consumed by television and video games, Bell was compelled to develop a program that would provide children with a physical outlet. In 2002, Bell invented TagBall, the product, with the vision of organizing TagBall Sports, a program to provide active individuals in the Washington, DC Metropolitan area with a venue for recreational sports activities, fellowship and opportunities for community service. On a localized level, Bell wants to establish a TagBall league in Charles County, DC, Prince George's County, and then roll it out statewide, nationwide and globally.

"TagBall Sports is honored to be associated with LifeStyles of Maryland, Inc.," said Bell.

TagBall Sports is very excited to team up with LifeStyles of Maryland, Inc. to provide a positive atmosphere for building self-esteem, self-identity, cultural awareness, character, overall fitness and health through structured fair play.
